THE BAD BOY.

[Peck's Sun.]

"I gness your progression that allver mine have made him crazy, havn't they?" go and find pa. I tell you my ma ought said the grocery man to the bad boy, as to be engaged by the British government he came into the store with his eye whis. to hunt out the dynamite fiends. She kers singed off, and powder marks on his face, and begun to play on the barmonica, as he sat down on a stick of stove wood and balanced himself.

"Oh, I guess not. He has hedged, He got in with a descon of another church and sold some of the stock to him, and pa says if I will keep my condemn down. He said he would leave it to me mouth shut he will unload the whole of if he ever said anything against the it, if the churches hold out. He goes to Feniaus, and I told him he had always a new church every night there is prayer | claimed that the Fenians were the nicest meeting, or anything, and makes ma go with him to give bim tone, and after meeting she talks with the sisters about home and found the house there he was how to piece a silk bed quilt, while pa gets in his work selling ailver stock. I don't know but what he will order some more stock from the factory, if he sells laughed right out, and said he knew it all he has got," and the boy went on playing, "There's a land that is fairer than day."

"But what was he skipping up street for the other night, with his hat off and grabbing at his coat tails as though they were on fire? And what was the celebration down on your street about that time? I thought the world was coming to an end," and the grocery man kept away from the boy for fear he would explode. "Oh, that was only a Fenian scare. Nothin' serious. You see, pa is sort of half Englishman. He claims to be an American citizen when he wants an office, but when they talk about a draft, he claims to be a subject of Great Britain, and he says they can't touch him. Pa is a darn smart man, and don't you forget it. Pa said a good deal about the wicked Fenians, and that they ought to be pulled, and when I read the story in the papers about the explosion in the British Parliament pa was hot. He said the Irish was running the whole world. He didn't dare say it at the table, or our hired girl would have knocked him silly with a spoonful of mashed potatoes, 'cause she's a Nirish girl, and she can lick any Englishman in this town. Pa said there ought to have been somebody there to have taken the bomb up and ranked with the greatest generals of the throwed it into the sewer before it exploded. He said if he should ever see a would grab it right up and throw it away where it wouldn't hurt doubtless possessed of different qualities. anybody. Pa has me read the papers to Lee was quick to plan, and Johnston him nights, 'cause his eyes has got splinters in them; and after I had read all there was in the paper I made up a whole out peer in the offensive. Lee had grand lot more and pretended to read it, about fighting qualities and Johnston could how it was rumored that the Fenians in equal Napoleon in planning a campaign." Milwaukee were going to place dynamite bombs at every house where an Englishman lived, and at a given signal blow them all up Pa looked pale around the gills, but he said he wasn't scared. Pa and ma was going to call on a she deacon that night, that has lots of money in the bank, to see if she didn't want to invest in a dead sure paying silver mine, and me and my chum concluded to give them a send off. We got a big black Injy rubber football, and painted 'Diaymite' in big white letters on it, and tied a piece of tarred rope to it for a fuse, and got a big firecracker-one of those big Fourth of July horse scarers, and a basketful of broken glass. We put the football in front of the step, and lit the tarred rope, and got under the step with the firecracker and the basket, where they go down into the basement. Pa and ma came out of the front door and down the described; also the pay of a surgeon who steps, and when pa saw the football and the burning fuse he said, 'Great Gosh! of the meeting was admirably written, Hanner, we're blowed up,' and he started and when it had been generally published to run, and ma she stopped to look at it. Bennett (who had all this time been Just as he started to run I touched off the firecracker, and my chum arranged it to pour out broken glass on the brick ried by the Herald steam launch to a pavement just as the firecracker went Cunard steamer, and took passage for off.
